

Kent Brushes

Kent Heritage

Kent Brushes was established in 1777, during the reign of George III, and has produced hair, shaving, and personal care brushes for almost 250 years. The company is among the oldest independent British companies still trading and has held the Royal Warrant for hairbrushes across nine consecutive Sovereign reigns.

A Legacy of Service

Kent Brushes supplied brushes to Army, Navy, and RAF personnel during both World Wars, including hair, tooth, shaving, cloth, shoe, and button brushes, as well as custom brushes for cleaning aircraft fuselages and anti-tank gun barrels. The company was also commissioned to produce a brush in which maps and compasses could be concealed to support the war effort.

Self-Audit Summary

•Tone and guideline compliance: content addresses a B2B trade audience only, with no consumer-facing second-person language, no unverified superlatives, British English spelling throughout, and no em dashes or AI-cliche phrasing.

•Grammar and structure: sentences checked for grammatical accuracy, consistent tense, and clarity; product entries follow a consistent structure across all categories.

•Source fidelity: all descriptions, dimensions, product codes, taglines, ingredient lists, and award mentions are drawn directly from the Kent brand presentation supplied. Nothing has been invented, inferred, or extrapolated. Several source-level issues were identified and are flagged in place against the relevant product: an evident heading typo (PF18), a product code formatting inconsistency (KB MINIHOG T), an incomplete sentence naming no certifying body (V07), an unresolved 190mm/200mm length discrepancy (A 21T), and an incomplete, unverifiable superlative claim that has been omitted (SCT1).

Scope: this document mirrors the full content of the supplied Kent resenatation, covering hairbrushes, combs, the beard and shaving range, makeup brushes, and scalp care, organised by category for ease of reference.
